

*The Leading Investor in Expanding
Information Technology Companies*

"You can't pick up a newspaper or magazine without recognizing how healthcare reform impacts our lives and our livelihood. In March 2010, Congress allocated tens of billions of dollars in financial incentives to subsidize the use of healthcare information technology. The goals which healthcare payers, providers and patients seek are simple: more access to better care at lower cost to the healthcare system. Healthcare reform represents a gold-mine for IT companies helping the healthcare system achieve those goals."

We look for market segments with long-term sustained growth. Within healthcare IT, electronic health records and patient-data analysis are two primary target markets. We believe both of these market segments will experience 5+ years of rapid expansion. Our healthcare IT portfolio exploits opportunities in technologies enhancing the use of electronic medical records for providers and payers, as well as complex patient data analysis to drive decisions by doctors administering care and by pharmaceutical companies developing drugs.
